ORDER

The parties recently completed briefing the FDIC-R's Supplemental Motion to Strike [154], which attacks the sufficiency the amended affirmative defenses that the defendants filed on November 27, 2013. In its supplemental motion, the FDIC-R incorporated its prior motion to strike [81] and related pleadings "as a renewed motion to strike." (See Supp. Mot. to Strike at 2.) The FDIC's R's original motion to strike [81] is denied as superseded by its supplemental/renewed motion [154]. We will address all the arguments that the parties have raised in their various pleadings in a single opinion, which we will issue in due course.
